| Description My system: Android 1.5, german locales Few hours ago i updated to the new version of beem 1.4 I didnt mind the settings gone to no where anyway, you should know, its possible to keep them (somehow) The very first screen i saw after the update was very ugly it was something like choose to create or an existing account the button was half the screen and neither labeled in german nor in english. I guess it was french, but i dont know. the next screen was quite the same (enter user and password) Thanks for doing your work and i really like your project | | | |

Hi,

We use a relative layout for these screens and the relative layout of android-1.5 and previous are relatively buggy ^^ . However, the relative layout is not use intensively in beem so you should not have this bug in other place. Sorry for the inconvenience.

I encourage you to switch to a more recent version of android if you can, since we may decide to not support android-1.5 in the future.
